HOOVER HANDED WICKERSHAM REPORT

LONG-AWAITED REPORT TO GO TO LAWMAKERS

Head of Commission Delivers Document To President Personally.

REPORT AWAITED

Many Nationally-Known Educators Help Commission.

By George R. Holmes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—The long-awaited report of the Wickersham law enforcement commission, dealing with prohibition and all forms of lawlessness, was turned over to President Hoover today. He will study it for 24 hours and then transmit it to congress tomorrow.

Whether Mr. Hoover will accompany the report to Congress with a favorable recommendation of his own was not made known at the White House. Nor was there any official statement as to the conclusions which the commission reached in its eighteen months of study and investigation.

SEE COMPROMISE

It is understood, however, that that portion of the report dealing with prohibition is in the nature of a compromise between the wet and dry factions, and that the eleven commissioners found occasion for expressing their individual views in separate statements which are attached to the body of the report.

The whole report, with the accompanying statements of the individual members, makes a bulky document of between 60,000 and 75,000 words—longer than the average popular novel. While prohibition might be said to comprise the theme song of the report, every phase of lawlessness has been gone into and recommendations made for reform.

DELIVERED EARLY

It was delivered to President Hoover personally by George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission. He went to the White House early this morning, the bulky document under his arm, and virtually laid in on Mr. Hoover's breakfast table.

Ten men and one woman, all prominent in their respective spheres, contributed to the conclusions in the report. Besides chairman Wickersham, who was Taft's attorney general. They were:

Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Va., lawyer.

Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, secretary of war in the Wilson administration.

Ada L. Comstock, of Cambridge, Mass., Dean of Radcliffe College.

Wm. I. Grubb, U. S. district judge, Birmingham, Ala.

Wm. S. Kenyon, U. S. circuit judge, Ft. Dodge, Ia.

Monte M. Lemann, professor of law at Tulane University, New Orleans.

Frank J. Loesch, lawyer, of Chicago.

Kenneth McIntosh, U. S. district judge, Seattle, Wash.

Paul J. McCormick, U. S. district judge, Los Angeles.

Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard law school.

FIVE ESCAPE OHIO BASTILE

Hamilton-Co Jail Is Scene of Daring Delivery; Saw Bars Loose.

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 19.—Five prisoners, all convicted on felony charges, today pried and sawed their way to liberty from the Hamilton-co jail.

The five were:

Sam Lovett, 34, alias Lamont, alias Hatton, alias "Humpy Ricks," who was indicted in November on a charge of robbery at Newton, O., and who is now under indictment in Newport, Ky., on a charge of receiving stolen property.

George Weber, 18, accused with Lovett in the Newton case.

Otto Buchanan, 26, held for Norwood authorities on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

James Starnes, held on charges of robbery.

Charles Nutler, negro, held on charges of burglary.

The escape was effected in exactly the same way seven prisoners broke away two years ago, jail attaches said.

The prisoners were all confined in the hospital ward. Sawing the bars of a window outside and dropped to a roof of a lower part of the building, where they "jimmied" a window into the probate court office and fled through the interior of the courthouse.

The handle of a tablespoon was used to jimmy the window of the probate court office, investigators said. An iron bar, wrenched from a bed, was used to pry open doors.

A broken spoon handle was found by Sheriff Asa Butterfield in the lock of the probate court office door.

28 HURT WHEN TRAINS CRASH

Boston - to - Washington Flyer Sideswipes Local Near Boston Today.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 19.—Rushing south bound through a blinding snow storm the crack Colonial express enroute from Boston to Washington sideswiped a local passenger train bound from Blackstone causing injuries to 28 persons.

The second car of the Colonial flier swung against the third car of the Blackstone local. Both locomotives were derailed and the locomotive of the express and the tender of the local overturned. Four cars of the local were derailed and two cars tipped on their sides. The baggage car of the express was crushed.

George E. Gladding of Pawtucket, R. I., engineer of the Washington flier, was pinned beneath the blazing wreckage of his car and was the most seriously injured of those removed to hospitals at Boston, Norwood and Forest Hill. Although his leg was caught beneath the heavy steel, Gladding bore the pain bravely until workmen with torches succeeded in cutting him loose from the wreckage.

The cause of the crash was under investigation.

Ralph McQuade spent Sunday in Lancaster.

LONE GUNMAN GETS $10,000

Daring Bandit Robs Chicago Union Terminal Early Today.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—A lone gunman, operating with skill and daring, robbed the Union Station, one of the city's largest railroad terminals of more than $10,000 in cash today.

Police described the holdup as one of the coolest and most audacious in recent years.

Hobard E. Smith, night cashier, was overpowered by the bandit, and apparently was the only person to see him.

Choosing an hour when Smith was alone in the great concourse of the station, counting his cash in a wicker cage, the bandit took the cashier by surprise.

Smith said he first became aware of the man's presence when he heard a man's voice bark: "open that door! And don't try any monkey business. This is a stickup. Buddy."

Looking up, Smith found himself gazing into the muzzle of an automatic. He was instructed to open the cage door with his left hand and keep the other hand raised. Smith, unarmed, complied. As the door opened the robber entered the cage and pressed his gun to the cashier's heart. Marching Smith to the money vault, the bandit scooped up the currency, the bulk of which was in counted and labled packages. Most of it was in small bills.

CHICAGO VICE PROBERS FIND PAY-OFF LIST

Documents Implicating Scores of High Officials Found In Hotel.

HELD BY CAPONE

Evidence To Go Before Grand Jury In Session Now.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Documents indicating that scores of high public officials received "protection" payments from the underworld were in the possession of the prosecutor's office today following a spectacular raid on the Rex hotel here.

The hotel, said to be the headquarters of a syndicate controlling vice, liquor and gambling in the south side district, was operated by Dennis "The Duke" Cooney, a trusted lieutenant of "Scarface Al" Capone.

The raid was made by investigators for a special grand jury inquiry into charges of graft in the police department. Assistant States Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and Charles E. Lounsbury, conducting this probe, said a study of the seized records probably would reveal corrupt connections between the Capone gang and officialdom, including the police. The records were impounded pending their presentation to the jury.

EVIDENCE SHOWN

A hotel raid several months ago produced evidence that the Capone interests were able to obtain supposedly secret police information through a "leak" of some kind, and this was one important factor leading to the present grand jury investigation.

In two safes in Cooney's office were found detailed records of the Rex hotel's expenses and income since Jan. 1, 1928. Currency and liberty bonds amounting to $25,000 and jewelry estimated at $5,000 also were discovered.

On the "expense" lists were notations of weekly payments of $333 and of $320 in protection fees to someone designated as "P. R." during the past three years.

Cash books also contained regular items of small "expenses" charged to "coppers." A stack of arrest slips, mostly for traffic law violations; blank cards authorizing admittance to the county hospital and bearing signatures of two county commissioners, and long lists of precinct election workers, with notations of small amounts to each, were included in the records.

14 ARE ARRESTED

Arrival of the raiders was greeted by the sounding of an alarm buzzer, the cry of "a pinch," and extinguishing of the lights. A score of women were said to have fled from secret exits, and fourteen men were arrested.

The office was in charge of George "Tubby" Miller in the absence of Cooney, who is in Florida.

In the meantime, the special grand jury was scheduled today to hear the story of Miss Bernice Shaw, 34, former sweetheart of Police Sergeant Jack Herdegen. Miss Shaw charged that Herdegen was a gambling collector and go-between for Jack Zuta, slain gangster.

FATHER OF 4, HUNTING WORK HERE, INJURED

James Dearth, 39, Chillicothe, Thrown Under Wheels of N. & W. Train.

LOSES ONE LEG

Condition In Hospital Thought Serious.

Returning to his home after fruitlessly searching for a job in this city late Friday evening, James B. Dearth, aged 39, of 79 N. Poplar-st, Chillicothe, is in a critical condition in Chillicothe hospital suffering from injuries he received when thrown under the wheels of a Norfolk & Western freight car.

Dearth had been out of employment for more than two months. Fearing for the livelihood of his wife and four children, he had been searching for work in surrounding communities and Friday came to this city. He tried at nearly every place in the city to find employment but failing boarded an N. & W. freight car at the S. Court-st crossing.

Just how the accident occurred is not known, although it is thought probable Dearth tried to jump off the moving train at a point between the N. & W. bridge and Water-st. He was thrown against a cut of cars on the next track and his feet must have been jammed under the rails.

A few minutes later his cries were heard by James Butcher, 12, of 167 N. Rose-st, who called police. An ambulance was also called and Dearth was rushed to the hospital where an examination showed both feet to be badly crushed and the left leg below the knee badly mangled. It was necessary to amputate the left leg. It was hoped the right leg could be saved.

His last employment was at the U. S. Veterans Bureau, according to relatives. He has been the sole supporter of a wife and four daughters all under 13 years of age.

STATE HELP IN DROUTH RELIEF IS NOW ASKED

Picture of Unsuspected Hardship Is Told To Governor White.

RED CROSS BUSY

Would Make Each County Have Certain Relief Quota

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19.—Governor George White today issued a proclamation calling upon the people of Ohio to contribute to the state's quota of $998,000 in the National Red Cross campaign for $10,000,000 relief funds in distress-stricken areas.

The proclamation was issued by the governor following a conference with Fred Spaulding, Columbus, state Red Cross field secretary.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19.—Unfolding a picture of little suspected hardships in southern Ohio, Red Cross workers today halted Governor White in his investigation of unemployment suffering and begged him to help them touch the state's heart in their drive for money to relieve drouth distress.

An appeal for a personal supplication to the state through a proclamation from the governor was made by Fred Spaulding, Columbus, state Red Cross field secretary, during a long conference with Mr. White at the state house this morning.

Governor White was the first citizen in the state to [illegible] quota in the national Red Cross campaign for $10,000,000 for relief, which began last Tuesday.

SHARE $998,000

Ohio's share of the national burden will be approximately one-tenth, or $998,000, and rapidity with which new examples of near-poverty are being discovered daily causes him to believe that quota may have to be doubled, Spaulding told the governor.

Today's accounts of drought results in this state will be followed tomorrow by stories of afflictions in other parts of the country when A. L. Schafer, New York, national director of disaster relief for Red Cross, comes here to visit the chief executive.

Meanwhile, the governor was planning conferences with returning state legislators to work out a plan for unemployment relief which he suggested to the Senate and the House of Representatives in his first message last week.

ROSS, FAYETTE NEEDY

Afflicted counties, which include Meigs, Ross, Adams, Highland, Vinton, Lawrence, Fayette, Gallia, probably will not be asked to contribute because all their funds are needed for local relief problems.

At least $120,000 will be asked in Hamilton-co. Franklin-co is to be requested to give $54,000. Counties with small populations will be asked to give as little as $4,000.

No canvassing or campaign deadline has been set, and the work will continue until funds are obtained. Additions to the original quota, if asked, probably will mean several weeks more of campaigning.

Spaulding told Governor White that Ohio drouth distress is much worse than in Indiana but not so bad as in Kentucky.

Failure of backyard gardens in Meigs-co has left 500 or more families dependent upon the Red Cross for food. Many mining folk there also look to the Red Cross for clothing.

Hundreds of sufferers who until two weeks ago thought they would not need relief are now appealing for help, he said.

NEED HALF MILLION

Of the $25,000,000 Congress has been asked to give the Red Cross for national relief, a half million could be well spent in this state in the next two or three months, according to Spaulding.

Though there are no known cases of starvation or similar suffering, conditions, while generally put under control immediately after they are discovered, are becoming more serious, he said.

Only an "early spring" to provide federal road work and outside employment of various kinds can lighten the Red Cross burden before three months have passed, he thinks.

Indiana Pro Five To Play C.A.C. Here Thursday

The first professional basketball team they have been forced to face this season has been scheduled for C. A. C. opposition Thursday evening when the Brazil, Ind., Professionals, a fast traveling team comes here. Reputed to be one of the strongest teams in western Indiana, composed of former college stars with Wabash and Butler University men on their roster, this Indiana team may prove a little too big a bite for the Clubmen, flushed after their sensational victory over Federal Glass last week.

Coming here from the stamping-ground of basketball, that Hoosier state of Indiana, the Brazil pros have an impressive record behind them. They have met and defeated the fast South Bend Oldsmobiles, with such stars as Strickland of Indiana U., Clem Crowe, former Notre Dame star, and a number of other satellites. They hold a victory over the Detroit Tool Shop team and have also turned back a number of other mighty clubs in Indiana and Michigan.

For the past five years this team has been entered in the independent state tournament and in two of these years has finished as runner-up. The tournament is staged at Indianapolis each year and draws the fruit of the Indiana basketball firmament

The C. A. C. is more than fortunate to book this outfit which is on a road trip starting the first of this week.

With their victory over the Federal Glass team last week in one of the most senational court battles of the decade the Club shows that it is right and that any team coming here will have a tough time turning back the fighting clubmen.

Two preliminaries have been booked the first starting at 7 p. m. between the Flying Clouds and the Jackson-twp Soils. The second will see the Gordon Tires play the Guild A. C. of Columbus.

Hinkey Haines, Montreal, led in stolen bases with 45, and Al Moore, Buffalo, made the most one-base hits, 155. George Toporcer, of Rochester, now manager of Jersey City, made the most two-base hits, 49.

Buffalo won team batting honors with a mark of 314.

BOXING WEEK TO BE DULL

Hockey, Wrestling To Draw New York Crowds; Schaaf Meets Braddock.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Boxing looked rather down in the mouth in New York today and the week promised to be somewhat dismal and wretched in a truly Russian way.

It starts off tonight with four separate shows at the smaller clubs among fighters so new nobody ever heard of them and goes into sad eclipse at Madison Square Garden with boxers so old nearly everyone has forgotten who they used to be.

In other words, hockey and wrestling are drawing crowds who have to do a subway rush to get in, while boxing is dead on its feet. Or to be exact, Ernie Schaaf of Boston meets James J Braddock of New Jersey and points west at the Garden Friday night in the big fight of the week.

And the semi-windup hurls together an immovable object in the person of Larry Johnson, the Chicago negro, and a so-called irresistable force in Mr. Paul Cavalier, while the opening ten-rounder features - -To follow the program exactly "two of the leading middleweights of the world," Vittorio Livan, the champion of Italy and Nick Testo of the Bronx and Sheepheads Bay.

All of which must prove that few of the good boxers want to fight or they never heard of New York.

WILDCATS ARE O. S. RIVALS

State's Champion Rifle Team To Have First Matches of the Season.

COLUMBUS, O.,—A basketball game with Northwestern Saturday night at Evanston and the first match of the season for the champion rifle team are all that are on the books for Ohio State squads this week.

Teams of the Universities of Delaware, Idaho and Nevada are the three opponents of the Buckeye riflemen in telegraphic matches. The Buckeye sharpshooters won the Big Ten title last season and are rated even stronger this year.

At Evanston, Ohio State will be meeting Northwestern for the first time since 1929 in basketball. If Saturday night's game runs true to form, it will be a battle from start to finish.

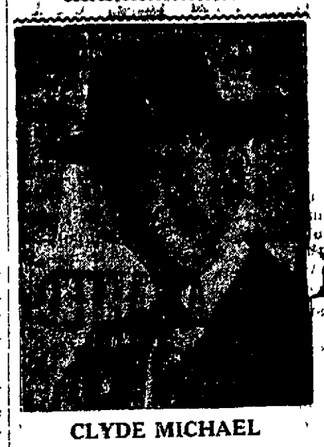

Since entering the Conference in 1913, the Buckeyes have met Wildcat teams 21 times in basketball and hold a one game margin. Not since 1925 when Ohio State scored two victories has either team been able to make a clean sweep of the home-and-home series. Eleven of the 21 games were won by less than a five-point margin.

WILDCATS, CHICAGO LEAD BIG TEN RACE

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 —With Northwestern and Chicago the sole undefeated survivors of the first two weeks of play, the sixty game basketball schedule of the Big Ten conference will turn into its second quarter tonight.

Northwestern will attempt to gain a notch on Chicago by defeating Michigan at Ann Arbor while the Maroons are idle. Ten days ago the Wildcast beat the Wolverines, 27 to 22 at Evanston.

Two other games on tonight's schedule are Wisconsin at Minnesota and Indranan at Iowa.

10 MILLIONS OF MEMORIAL TREES TO BE PLANTED SOON

Throughout the United States during this year and next, trees will be planted in greater numbers than ever before. Ten million memorial trees are to be the feature of the 1932 bicentennial of the birth of George Washington, who was himself one of the earliest and most ardent of tree lovers and tree planters.

The commemorative planting began last autumn, when the first tree was set out in the grounds of the Capitol at Richmond, Va., by Governor Pollard, with ceremonies attended by representatives of the original thirteen colonies. This spring millions of trees will take their places as memorials, many of them singly, others in splendid memorial avenues and in groves and forest plantings.

The American Tree Association is urging that so far as possible all memorial trees shall be set out and registered this spring, so that living and growing trees may be dedicated in February, 1932. By setting the trees out this year, planters will discount the probability of any dead or dying trees being dedicated, because where losses occur replacements next fall will be possible.

Civic organizations on Long Island are planting a memorial tree at every spot Washington is known to have visited In every state the patriotic societies, the boy and girl scouts, civic bodies and other organizations are carrying out group plans, and are urging every citizen to plant individually a memorial tree

It is urged that every tree shall be registered with the American Tree Association. Each tree will be recorded and the records filed for permanent preservation with the existing records of other historic trees, in a nation honor roll of trees A pamphlet giving information as to registration and instructions for planting has been prepared and will be sent for return postage by Miss Grace Tabor, 13th Floor, 250 Park Avenue, New York City.

"Every region of this continent has, or had, its characteristic trees," says Miss Tabor in the Woman's Home Companion "George Washington chose from his own forests practically all the trees which he disposed around the grounds or park at Mount Vernon on the Patomac, having them dug up as young saplings and planted at the spots appointed by him Later he added trees which came to him as souvenirs from friends in all parts of the world.

"There were also many specimens grown from seeds brought back by Washington from battlefields, since it was his custom to pick up as he strode along an acorn or two or a handful of beechnuts, hickories, walnuts horse-chestnuts and so on, and take these home and plant them But nothing dominated the splendor of the trees originally brought from the forests, and Mount Vernon today is dominated by these.

"Certain civic organizations are recommending the planting of the Douglas spruce for Washington memorials This is regarded as appropriate because it is an evergreen tree that is at home over the length and breadth of the land, even though it is native to the western regions only Moreover, it is recognized all over the world as characteristically American It transplants well and is of exceptional beauty, alike in form, color of foliage and in the decorative quality of its ruddy cones"

Generally speaking, evergreen trees are not everywhere as suitable for memorial plantings as are deciduous trees But where they can be appropriately used they are recommended by the Tree Association as desirable. The pines have a special tradition associated with them, for it was the belief of primitive peoples that the first tree to rise from the bosom of the earth was the pine. Among many races it stands as the symbol of eternal life.

GOLDEN WINS RICH TOURNEY

Defeats George Von Elm In Play-off For Agua Caliente Awards.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 19—John Golden, the professional golfer from Noroton, Conn., today was in possession of the diamond awarded to the winner of the $25,000 Agua Caliente open golf championship as well as a considerable bundle of currency. George Von Elm, of Hollywood, had to be content with an equal split of the lumped sums of first and second prizes, which was $6,750 In addition, about $1,000 of gallery proceeds was divided by the two men who played off the tie here yesterday.

At the end of the regular 72 holes of play, Golden and Von Elm were tied at 293 strokes each. Before the play-off yesterday they privately decided, it was understood, to go fifty-fifty on the money end of it. This proved to be a particularly good move on Von Elm's part, as he was defeated by a margin of four strokes on the play-off. Golden carded a 75, three over par, to a 79 for Von Elm

The fact that a money division had been agreed upon served to make the match rather unattractive to golf enthusiasts, and the match itself was not much of an exhibition Brisk winds played havoc with the games of both contestants Only two birdies were scored during the play, each player making one. Von Elm was particularly erratic in his short game and appeared to have lost the touch which brought him into a tie on Saturday.

FARMER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19—Worry over financial affairs was thought today to have been responsible for the suicide of Charles L. Walton, 56, wealthy farmer living near Hilliards, who shot and killed himself with a shotgun at his home Sunday.

County officials who investigated the death said that the man placed the muzzle of the gun in his mouth and pushed the trigger with a stick as he sat in a chair He was unmarried and lived with a brother, William.

TWENTY MILLIONS WILL BE SPENT BY NATION RADIOS

By Robert S. Thornburgh

WASHINGTON,—If the federal radio commission acts favorably upon the applications of clear-channel broadcasting stations for authority to boost their power to a maximum of 50,000 watts, it will mean the expenditure of probably more than $20,000,000 in the next few years in remodeling of equipment

Belief was expressed in official quarters today that eventually the radio commission will yield to the insistent demands of the broadcasters and let the bars down for the 50,000 watt stations Engineers hold that super-power should be authorized in order that facilities afforded by the clear-channels may be fully utilized

Before many years undoubtedly the power of broadcasting stations will go even higher than 50,000 watts with the progress of radio scientists in solving the many problems involved in transmission High power is held the solution of natural interference and would put broadcasting on almost as satisfactory plane in summer as in cold weather according to some authorities The suggestion has been made that broadcasters should be authorized to boost their power to higher levels in summer and in winter

The commission is faced with the necessity of granting power increases to the 225 regional stations, now held to a maximum of 1,000 watts power, if the 55 stations on the 40 cleared channels are permitted to use 50,000 watts.

Engineers feel both groups of stations should be given higher power If the middle-class or regional stations were held to 1,000 watts with the other group on 50,000 watts their programs might be blanketed

With both classes of stations permitted to use higher power it was thought there would be no change in the interference situations Experts did not think the higher power would have much effect on the local stations, using mostly 100 watts since they serve a very limited area High power was held the only solution on the problem of getting satisfactory all-the year-round reception to isolated communities, rural and mountain districts far from large broadcasting stations.

THEATER IN CITY IS HOLDUP SCENE

CLEVELAND, Jan 19—Armed and wearing masks, three youthful bandits today held up John Hart manager of the Doan theatre, forced him to open the theater safe and escaped with a loot of $640

After Hart had opened the strog box, the bandit trio marched the manager and two scrubwomen into an anteroom of the theater office and rifled the safe of the cash

Ordering Hart and the women to "keep quiet for ten minutes," the three gunmen cut the telephone wires and made their escape in Hart's automobile, which was parked in an alley alongside the theatre.

BUYING LEAPS SAYS POTTER

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19—The annual trade exposition which was held here last week will result in contracts and orders for approximately $25,000,000 worth of glass and pottery products, according to a statement by Charles H. West, president of the Westmoreland Glass Company, who was in charge of the exposition

"An estimate of $25,000,000 trade showing is really a conservative figure," West stated. "It must be considered that of the 65 manufacturers represented, none does less than $500,000 worth of business anually, and may reach the $1,000,000 mark.

"During the past week, more than 500 buyers, representing the largest wholesale and retail establishments in the country, have been here," the manufacturer said. "The hand-to-mouth buying prevalent during 1930 has passed and a confidence in the future is seen"

American Ships

SEVENTY-FIVE percent of the number of American ship of 1,000 gross tons or over belong, not to the government, but to private interest. In the brief span of a dozen years that has elapsed since the war, the shipping board has disposed of America's huge war time fleet until the government is again almost out of the shipping business.

It is vitally necessary that this fleet shall prosper. The danger of depending upon vessels flying foreign flags was demonstrated during the World War, when American ships could not be found to transport goods to foreign markets and the government faced the grave problem of obtaining enough transports to carry the A. E. F. to France. Belligerents may confiscate enemy ships, but few of the latter wait to be seized with a threat of war in the air.

The United States must be self-sufficient with respect to the shipment of its goods to the consuming nations of the world. It also needs a merchant marine strong enough to serve as a naval reserve.

Government subsides and private capital can provide the ships—are providing them, in fact—but public patronage of these vessels is indispensable to their continued operation. The government and capital have done their part to give the United States a merchant marine in keeping with its enviable maritime traditions. Now it is up to America shippers and travelers to use ships flying the Stars and Stripes.

Not a Time for Politics

THE conventional attitude of the public toward politicians is one of disparagement. They seem to be regarded as persons engaged in an unwholesome avocation and possessing qualities suited only to the pursuit of selfish ends. Hardiness, calculation and suspicion are set down as the prevailing elements in their character, along with an experienced skepticism which prevents them from falling victims to credulity or illusion.

It is an estimate which has had much to support it in the past in the lives of men and the history of their activities. Seasoned politicians have, indeed, been for the most part a practical lot devoted to realities and little exposed to the attributes of innocence.

But it begins to look as if politics might be on the threshold of a new day. Congress started to play politics with unemployment and drought relief, thought better of it and supported a president whose sincerity in the present emergency is above suspicion.

President Hoover has proved that he considers a promise as not just a promise but as something that is to be fulfilled. It is true that he has not accomplished all that he would have liked to, but it cannot be said that he did not try.

But Mr. Hoover is an engineer, an administrator, not a politician.

Are Winters Changing

IS nature growing softer and more sentimental, at least in winter time, or is her supply of cold and snow becoming exhausted, owing to her spendthrift extravagance during the ice age, when she attempted to turn the whole world into a skating rink?

Youngsters, who are just discovering this very old world, may think the winters they know to be all that a winter can and should be, but to old-timers they seem tame affairs in comparison with those "old-fashioned winters." In the opinion of reminiscers Madame Nature is still pretty good at cyclones, floods and heat waves, but her refrigeration system seems to be giving out.

The younger generation will never win out in one of these comparative arguments about winter until it becomes the older generation, for the latter can always remember winters "way back" when snow was much deeper, mercury much lower, blizzards much more blizzardy, winter much more wintry.

It may be that winters are becoming milder, but it is much more likely that the most moderate of the present is being contrasted with the severest of the past, that backward-lookers are singling out some freak of a half century ago as a standard for their old-fashioned winters, which aside from that one unusual blizzard were much like winters of today.

NEW ARRIVALS

GIRL UNAFRAID BY GLADYS JOHNSON

In the Service of Love.

CHAPTER XLVII.

HE stepped into a small, bright room to one side of the front hall and seated himself on the divan.

On the card he had written "Concerning Cyril Underhill."

Cecile appeared in a remarkable short space of time. His first glance told him that she was annoyed and alarmed, both qualities which she tried to hide under a mask of false sweetness.

She wore a dress of black chiffon, lavishly printed with flaring red and green orchid flowers. The effect of this was to heighten the dead white of her face and throat and turn her eyes to ice-green. Her long, taffy-colored hair was combed sleekly back and wound into a French twist. Her lips were the usual startling and unconvincing red.

To Tom she was more astonishingly artificial than ever, reminding him of the featureless and futuristic clothing models he had noticed in the large shops downtown.

Cecile sank bonelessly upon the divan beside him.

"You have made me so curious with your inscription about Mr. Underhill," she smiled. "Please do relieve my burning curiosity."

Tom did not return her flashing smile. "I regret that I had to use his name. But it was necessary that I see you."

She made large eyes at him, "But, Mr. Corbett, it is a pleasure!"

The Showdown.

Tom took up the burden, very red in the face. "No, this is not going to be a pleasure for either one of us," he said desperately. "And we'll make it easier for ourselves if we drop all pretence of friendliness and act naturally. I must be frank. Brutally frank. I am going to speak of very personal matters and of course you are not going to like it."

Cecile's eyes had narrowed as she spoke and they were like the watchful, half-closed eyes of a cat.

"Well?"

"Well—you know that I am an old friend of Ken. Ever since we went to college we've been thick——"

"Not so thick lately, I believe."

"No." Tom's eyes narrowed now. "I see we understand each other. But notwithstanding, I am here on Ken's behalf now. I am asking that you give him a divorce."

Cecile's eyes glinted. "A most peculiar request for a man to make even for such a dear friend . . ."

"Perhaps. But when you see fate — or chance, rather — has placed some very peculiar weapons in my hands."

"Such as"——

'Did you have a pleasant trip when you went South last time?" Tom was sweating profusely. The role of a subtle villain was not in his line but he held himself doggedly to it.

"Wouldn't you call a visit of—of several days indiscreet, Mr. Corbett?"

The blood drained away from the woman's face until her lips stood out startingly from the background. "Why do you ask that?"

"Because Mr. Underhill has a very intelligent Chinese servant, named Lee, whom I imagine he is shortly going to discharge and whom I shall arrange to take into my sister's home. Luckily Carolyn needs a cook."

For a moment she looked at him speechless and there was murder in her eyes. She moistened her lips. "The word of a servant!"

Tom shook his head regretfully. "Ah, but people are so willing to believe the worst!" And in his mind he was thinking, "This woman dreads me!"

"So, . . ." Cecile swallowed and he could see the convulsive movement of her long throat. "It is blackmail. . . .

"Oh, surely not that!" he said gently. "Let us say that I would not like to see the wife of my friend—misjudged—on the word of a Chinese servant. For my own part, I am discretion itself if I think the other party is willing to do the right thing."

"You can't bully me into your schemes!" Cecile was beginning violently when she became cautious. She was suddenly badly frightened.

"Tom . . . someone has been lying about me—viciously lying —" She stopped at the sight of his hardening face. She sank down again on the divan and covered her face with her long white hands. Her muffled voice sounded. "Oh—this is ghastly! My God . . ."

Her quick mind was darting back and forth like a shuttle as she searched for a way out. She dropped her hands. Spoke with feverish intensity.

"I know why you're doing this! It isn't for Ken. It's for her! For that girl! Oh, what a fool you are! Can't you see if I divorce Ken it will make it possible for him to marry her? That means you've really lost her. Let a few months go by. They'll get tired of each other. She'll be glad enough to come to you on your own terms."

Tom was looking at her just as he might have regarded some strange and repulsive bug. "Lord, you are rotten!" His voice was thick.

She flushed. "And you are a blind fool! You and Ken—what you can see in that common shop girl——"

Tom rose. He knew the victory was won and he was suddenly very tired.

"It really isn't necessary that you see," he replied. "I am to understand then that you will see your attorney right away and file suit for divorce—desertion will do. Certainly you will not name another woman."

"I shouldn't delay if I were you. And in return I will develop a very poor memory about your trips. I wouldn't worry about that Chinese boy if I were you—unless I take a hand. But you might tell the editor of The Spy that I am only waiting the chance to get him for libel at the first opportunity, and that when I get that chance I'll go through hades and high water to see that he's thrown in jail. I have an idea that the days of The Spy are numbered. And—I guess that's all."

Lightening the Load

THE greater part of the outstanding public debt of 16 billions of dollars was negotiated when money commanded much higher earnings than it does today. So, if the federal treasury can call in these certificates of indebtedness and issue new ones at a much lower interest rate, the government—which means the taxpayers—will make a nice profit of some millions.

For that reason Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is seeking from congress authority for issuing an additional eight billions in bonds in anticipation of a series of refunding operations beginning in March. In dealing with billions of principal shading of interest becomes highly important and the treasury department should be armed at all times with whatever legislation is necessary for taking advantage of a declining money rate.

The treasury department has called for March 15 more than a billion dollars in three and one-half per cent notes. Under the Second Liberty loan act it can issue new bonds for the old and under prevailing money rates it can sell them at a much lower interest rate. But the treasury department looks even farther ahead. From June, 1932 to October 1933, more than eight billions in First Liberty loan bonds will be callable, and the department wishes to be prepared for refunding at a lower interest rate if the money market continues in its present deflated state.

Rules to Follow on the Road to Health

—Simple, and Within Your Power to Obey

Take Stock of Yourself Once in a While, Resolve to Banish Those Health Shortcomings, Urges Dr. Copeland, Listing a Few of the "Don'ts"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IT is a good thing to take stock of ourselves once in a while. After a Summer out of doors, we come back to city and town with brown faces and good health. These are the result of having lived a more natural existence than we do the rest of the year.

DR COPELAND

Probably, if we were to ask the average person how many hours a day he spends out doors during the Winter months he would be evasive on the subject. As a matter of fact many persons do not enjoy good health because they are not enough out-of-doors.

There are certain health rules that all could follow with good results, if they would. Most persons are so busy they really do not give enough thought to rules of health. Of course, the less we think about disease the better for us. At the same time it is needful to map our day so that we shall be doing the things that make for good health.

Suppose we consider today some of the rules that should help us along the road of good health. You know them as well as I do, but somehow or other they are not observed as they should be. There is something about human nature that makes us resentful of rules and prohibitions. We are willing to be led but not driven.

But bear with me if I remind you of your shortcomings. You may write and remind me of mine. Then we will be even!

As regards the eating rules—have you any that you really observe? Or do you as regularly as sunrise eat too much food? Honestly, is that the reason you are taking on weight?

Overeating is one of the common faults of mankind—and this includes womankind. An excess of proteins—meat and eggs, is as great a fault as the taking of too much of the sweets.

To have good health, some of the bulky, raw foods should be consumed every day. Cabbage, lettuce apples and celery are some of the things that come to my mind.

Eat slowly, enjoy your food, get its real taste. Drink lots of water, not at meals, but between times.

Taking an abundance of water aids the elimination. It helps to keep the intestines clean. The waste materials and poisons are carried away when there is plenty of water in the system.

You know as well as anybody that plenty of sleep in a well-ventilated room is essential to health. Impure air and insufficient rest are responsible for many ills.

Light loose, porous clothing will increase your well-being. Men are given to wearing too heavy clothing. A reform in this matter would be an aid to health.

Get out of doors all you can. Hold your chin up, your stomach in and your spine straight. Walk vigorously and act as if living were a joy. Then you will be fit company for kings and common men!

Answers to Health Queries

C. L. N. Q—What do you advise for acne?

A.—Correct your diet, by cutting down on sugar starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Avoid constipation at all times. For full particulars send a self addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

MR M. A. Q—I have a slight swelling on the left side between abdomen and hip. It is not very noticeable excepting when I am tired. At this time there is a sensation similar to that of a bruised muscle. Would this be a hernia? Would hernia be painful at all times? Would it become bigger if no truss or support is worn? The trouble has persisted for about 2 months and seems a little less troublesome than it was in the beginning.

A.—Probably due to a strain. Careful examination will determine whether or not you have a hernia and then definite treatment can be advised. A hernia would not necessarily be painful all the time. Possibly depending upon the seriousness or extent of the trouble.

* * *

M E K. Q—What do advise for Bright's Disease?

A.—This should have proper medical attention and treatment. Have your doctor advise you. Diet is one of the important factors in the treatment.

* * *

D M C. Q.—What causes belching after taking yeast? Should I continue taking it under the circumstances? How long will it take before improvement will be noticeable?

A.—The yeast may not agree with your particular system—although the belching may be due to some food combination rather than to the yeast. Watch your diet and keep the system clear. Yeast is usually taken as an aid to elimination—you should notice improvement within a reasonable length of time.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Hundreds of children, and hundreds more who used to be children, thrilled to the oft-told but deathless adventures of Tom and Huck, Becky and Aunt Polly Injun Joe and Muff Potter at the Clftona Theater yesterday, when "Tom Sawyer," Mark Twain's classic of childhood, opened there for a three days' stay.

"Tom Sawyer" is the kind of material that the talking screen was made for. And in the hands of such capable young players as Jackie Coogan, Mitzi Green and Junior Durkin, it is well-nigh the greatest story ever told in audible celluloid.

Paramount should be credited with faultless showmanship in its manner of treating this immortal theme; the production is faithful to the letter. Every whit of Mark Twain's original is beautifully, impressively translated to the screen.

No greater recommendation is required. No greater could be written.

The only picture that ever approached it for sheer magnificence of direction, production and acting is "Peter Pan"—but "Peter Pan" was a silent picture.

AT THE GRAND

Human interest is the keynote of "Good Intentions," the Fox movietone all talking feature at the Grand theater. William K. Howard, the author and director of the picture, has undetaken the difficult task of portraying a crook sympathetically and convincingly—and he has accomplished his purpose in a most praiseworthy manner.

Edmund Lowe, in the principal role, does a marvelous job of impersonating the slightly Jekyll-and Hydeish character of the gang leader who tries to reform and with the assistance of a genuinely noteworthy cast and Howard's deft directorial touches, he succeeds in making the story not only plausible but thoroughly entertaining.

5 PRISONERS ESCAPE JAIL

Two Recaptured Near South Bend, Three Others Are Still At Large.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 19.—Police of three states today were conducteing a man hunt for three prisoners who escaped from the county jail here yesterday. Two others who escaped with them were back in their cells.

The five battered down an already partially sawed bar, locked the lone turnkey in a cell after taking his keys, and strolled through the front door in the heart of the business district.

Cletus Corey, 19, of Benton, Ill., was captured by detectives a few hours later as he walked through an outlying residential district.

Corey disclosed that Herbert Smith, a negro murderer, had headed south, and a posse found him in a woods near the Erskine golf course. He surrendered without offering resistance.

The men still at large were Edward O'Brien, of Chicago, awaiting trial on charges of robberies in Osceola, Ind., said to have led the break for liberty; Howard Miller, of Detroit, and Frank Lucas, of Plymouth.

CERAMIC COURSE NOW SPONSORED

COLUMBUS, O.—A short ceramic engineering course and an institute for county surveyors are being offered here this week by Ohio State University. The ceramic short course is being held from Monday through Saturday morning and the surveyor's institute is scheduled for Wednesday morning.

The ceramic engineering short course is designed particularly for ceramic plant managers, superintendents, foreman, engineers and plant men. The Ohio Ceramic Industries Association is cooperating in presenting the course.

Four separate courses of instruction are offered. They deal, respectively, with structural clay products, refactories, white wares, and metal enamels. Beside members of the university staff, visiting experts are on the program.

The second annual county surveyor's institute will be held in connection with the 52nd annual meeting of the Ohio Engineering Society at 10 a. m. Wednesday at the Neil House. "Some Duties of a County Surveyor" will be described by Cldye R. Zeune, Scioto County surveyor, Prof. E. F. Coddington, Ohio State University, will report on "Cooperation of County Surveyors in Preserving the U. S. geological Survey Levels." O. J. Marshall, also of the university, will talk on registration of surveyors.

The sales of the average farmer in 1930 compared to 1929 were 12 percent less hogs, 23 percent less bushels of wheat, 26 percent fewer bushels of potatoes, and 21 percent fewer bushels of oats.

PRICE OF FORD CARS REDUCED

DETROIT, Mich.—Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co., announces reduction in prices of Ford cars and trucks of from $5 to $45 on 15 models.

"Reports we have received from our branches and dealers throughout the world lead us to believe that the automobile business will show a steady improvement," Mr. Ford said.

"Since the automobile industry is a basic one, any betterment in it cannot help but have a beneficial influence on business generally."

In the case of the coupe and sedan, representing the model of greatest output, the price reduction is respectively $5 and $10 while the higher reductions are on the so-called de luxe models. The reductions are effective Monday.

In announcing a reduction at this time, Edsel Ford followed a practice initiated by Henry Ford on several previous occasions when the automobile industry was suffering from business depression.

Reducing prices and speeding up production, the elder Ford invariably succeeded in his objective to hasten the general business recovery.

PLAN BUILDINGS AT O. UNIVERSITY

ATHENS, Ohio—Two new buildings will make their apeparance in the Ohio University campus within the next few months if the appropriation of $1,985,687 asked by President E. B. Bryan is granted by the Ohio legislature now in session.

The buildings will be a new biology department home and a new men's dormitory. Location of these proposed buildings has not been definitely decided.

The biology department at Ohio University has been one of the most rapidly expanding groups in the past few years. Under present conditions, students majoring in this study are cramped for space to do necessary work, being housed in two other buildings constructed primarily for other sciences.

A new men's dormitory has long been a need at Ohio University, especially for freshmen. Several dormitories are available for women, but none as yet has been built for men.

While not officially announced, it is understood that should the appropriation be sliced so that one or the other proposed buildings had to be eliminated, it would be the biology department which got the new building.

With Ohio University expanding greatly each year, need for more class rooms has become evident. The housing problem could be taken care of in Athens for another short period if necessary, but lecture rooms are badly needed.

The enrollment at Ohio University this semester was just two short of 2,600 students, making it second largest state university in Ohio. It is exceeded only by Ohio State.

Further Tales Of Clara Bow's Life To Be Told

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—Further intimate details of Clara Bow's private life were to be revealed from the witness stand today by Miss Daisy De Voe, the "It" girl's former secretary and confidante

The blonde Daisy, on trial in Judge W. C Doran's court on a charge of misappropriating $16,000 of the titan-haired film actress' funds was expected at today's session to carry out as well as possible a threat to "tell plenty" regarding Miss Bow.

The "It" girl, meanwhile, was said at her home to be in a state of partial physical and nervous collapse aggravated by the strain of the trial. A heavy cold which frequently interrupted her testimony last week continued to annoy her, and her bronchial tubes were said to be affected to some extent. It was stated that unless she takes an unexpected turn for the better, she may not return to court for several days.

Because of Miss Bow's condition, it seemed improbable that Deputy District Attorney Dave Clark, prosecuting Miss De Voe, would recall the screen star as a rebuttal witness.

That Miss De Voe's testimony would be shortened as much as possible was indicated by her attorney, Nathan Freedman, who hinted that he might conclude his direct examination in two or three hours. Freedman said he would summon a score or more corroborative witnesses when Miss De Voe had concluded, and then would rest his case.

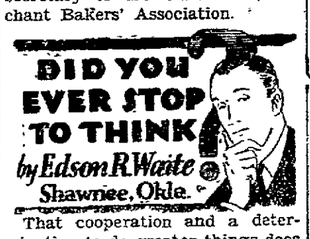

Miss De Voe was to resume today the story she started Friday when she first appeared as a witness. Discussing life in the Bow home at that time, she asserted that the actress indulged in poker parties and occasionally bought and served liquor. The story was embellished imformally Saturday, although there was no court session, the principal topic being what Miss De Voe had learned regarding Miss Bow's "boy friends" of the past few years.

Although formally charged with taking $16,000, Miss De Voe is said to have confessed to misappropriations amounting more nearly to $35,000. Witnesses also have testified that she attempted to extort $125,000 from her former employer shortly after being discharged.

That cooperation and a determination to do greater things does much to make a bigger city.

A city will progress or retrograde—make your progress faster!

It doesn't pay to lose time in argument.

A city learns to live when it learns to boost.

Your city should go full speed ahead.

If you want to make a good living, if you want a better city in which to live, if you want better homes, better schools, better churches, playgrounds and parks, boost your city on its way to greater achievement.

If you want a city in which your children will have a chance to make good, BOOST YOUR CITY!

GOOD BUSINESS MUST BE CONSIDERED AS ONE OF THE GREATEST HELPS IN CITY-BUILDING. WITHOUT GOOD BUSINESS THERE ARE VERY FEW PROGRESSIVE IDEAS, AND WITHOUT THEM THERE CANNOT BE ANY VERY SATISFACTORY REALIZATION.

In addition to the $465 in scholarship prizes and the trophy cups and medals usually offered, the Put-in-Bay Chamber of Commerce is offering to the winner in each of the competitions a week's vacation at Put-in-Bay with expenses there paid.

The high schools whose representatives win in each of the contest will as usual be presented large silver loving cups which become the permanent possession of the school.

The extempore speaking contest has been simplified this year so that contestants are required to be prepared to discuss only one of the six general topics which have been selected for use in the contest. Subjects for discussion this year include Modern Social Conventions, Political Issues, School Sports, The Press, Radio, and Our Paramount Institutions.
